

Dogmom's Dish

Food, Fashion and Fabulous Outings

January 20, 2008

Show Some Knee On The Tee

Whether you prefer the red, white, or blue tee, you can now look stylish enough to go out and about after a full eighteen. Golf dresses that transition from the fairway to cocktail hour were one of the most exciting trends at this year's PGA Merchandise Show. The three best styles came from brand new, women-owner/designers Amanda Palmer, Green Tee Apparel and Cocchia.

Green Tee Apparel serves an entirely different market segment but is another newcomer that totally gets it. Liz and Tiffany are adorable, smart and clearly excited about their line. I am too, after feeling the breathable fabrics including the poly pique (on the yellow halter dress) and poly/spandex (92/8) blends made with nanotechnology for stain resistance (click here an excellent article on 'Smart Technologies'). Love the color palette and the sophisticated trims, piping and thoughtful details such as the tiny tee pocket (pictured), flushed pockets for extra balls as the tiny tee (heaven knows I need those) and glove loops.

Like Amanda Palmer's line, the Green Tee gals have given a lot of thought to adding stylish design details, such as the slightly puffed sleeve and waist belt on their updated polo. Best of all though, they're offering the line in petite sizes...THANK YOU!!! (-:

The blue/dark tangerine dress is my favorite and will be the first purchase when their online store up and running. In the meantime, you can see line and sign up on their mailing list for news on the latest retailers at www.greenteeapparel.com

For the full article, visit http://dogmom11.typepad.com/dogmoms\_dish/2008/01/show-some-kne-1.html

